

Aichi Gakuin University Exchange Program Newsletter

First Issue

By Center for International Programs and Center for Japanese Language and Culture

This newsletter provides information on our courses and events. If you are interested in studying Japanese language and culture at Aichi Gakuin University (AGU), please ask the office in charge of studying abroad at your university or feel free to contact us.

Our first newsletter focuses on the newly established Center for Japanese Language and Culture (CJLC) and its activities.

April

CJLC was established at AGU this year. Now, we can accept exchange students, regardless of their Japanese language levels. For students with advanced Japanese competencies (JLPT N2 or N1), we offer courses at the university where they will study with Japanese students, as done previously. For students with developing Japanese competencies (zero beginner to N3 level), we offer small-group courses of different levels at CJLC.

May

Two exchange students at CJLC successfully gave a presentation about their university in Korea on May 30th. They produced a wonderful leaflet and presentation in the Project Work class. Their presentation was conducted in Japanese language. The audience was impressed with their high standard of Japanese language. They were intrigued by the presentation. The leaflet was well-composed and reader-friendly, which impressed the Japanese students and teachers at AGU.

June

Five exchange students from China, Korea and Taiwan tried calligraphy in the Calligraphy Club at AGU on June 21st. The Japanese members assisted the students in the calligraphy session. Both the exchange students and the Japanese students had a great time together.

The International Cultural Exchange Club at AGU had an international cooking session on June 28th. Exchange students and teachers made their homeland dishes and Japanese students of the Department of Nutritional Science made some Japanese dishes.

July

On July 4th, two Korean exchange students tried the tea ceremony and pottery, as part of the Japanese courses outside the AGU campus. On the right, are photos of maccha tea with Japanese sweets and also examples of their pottery work.

On July 29th, two Korean exchange students completed their courses at CJLC and received their certificates. We are very proud of their hard work and we wish them a prosperous future. See you again!
